

Type Summary

Type 2: The Supportive Advisor

Type 2s are generous, demonstrative, people-pleasing, and possessive. They take a genuine interest in others and come alongside anyone in need through their acts of service, helpful advice, and nurture in fear of being rejected or unwanted.

Type 9: The Peaceful Mediator

Type 9s are thoughtful, reassuring, receptive, accommodating, and resigned. They are natural peacemakers and agents of reconciliation who bring a sense of calm and empathy wherever they go. They “go along to get along” to avoid the internal or external conflict they feel.

Core Motivations

Your Type has many important factors, but four Motivations are the driving force behind your thoughts, feelings, and actions. These affect when and how you react in life and relationships.

Type 2: The Supportive Advisor

- ⚠ Being rejected and unwanted, being thought worthless, needy, inconsequential, dispensable, or unworthy of love.
- ☀ Being appreciated, loved, and wanted.
- 🌀 Pride: denying your own needs and emotions while intuiting and focusing on the feelings and needs of others, confidently inserting your helpful support in hopes that others will say how grateful they are for your thoughtful care.
- 🔥 You are wanted and loved.

Type 9: The Peaceful Mediator

- ⚠ Being in conflict, tension, or discord; feeling shut out and overlooked; losing connection and relationship with others.
- ☀ Having inner stability and peace of mind.
- 🌀 Sloth: remaining in an unrealistic and idealistic world in order to keep the peace, remain easy-going, and not be disturbed by your anger; falling asleep to your passions, abilities, desires, needs, and worth by merging with others to keep peace and harmony.
- 🔥 Your presence matters.

As A Couple

Healthy Relationship

Type 2 and Type 9 couples can be a fantastic combination because they share a genuine interest in serving, nurturing and bettering others. Both Types are optimistic, positive and desire to keep the peace. When the relationship is thriving, the partners’ warmth and good natures benefit one another and make the world a more harmonious and welcoming place.

Struggling Relationship

Type 2 and Type 9 couples can have problem areas. Their shared propensity to stifle their own needs and be codependent and overly-accommodating can leave them both feeling unseen, unappreciated and resentful, eventually leading to angry outbursts and loss of intimacy.

Gospel Alignment

In Galatians 2:14, Paul explains to the churches of Galatia what it looks like when our heart condition is out of step or alignment with the Gospel, and we begin to believe we have to work for our relationship status with God instead of resting in the truth that we are his beloved child. In verse 20, Paul says, “I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me. And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me.”

Our assessment results help you and your spouse recognize your alignment with the Gospel. When misaligned, your mind and heart wander from your true identity in Christ, and you start to take control of your own life. When aligned, you know, believe, and trust in the finished work of Christ and rest in your full identity in him. To experience Gospel alignment in your marriage, remember that you and your spouse are God’s cherished children, and ask the Holy Spirit to work in your heart and renew your mind.

When your mind and heart wander away from fully believing and trusting in what Christ has done for you, you begin to think that you have to take care of your needs by yourself. You are still his beloved child and know God is loving and providing, but you aren’t 100 percent sure if he will do what’s in your best interest. Therefore, you think you need to take over some control of your life. Getting distracted by what you want (and often demand) causes you to be misaligned with the Gospel and veer off our best path for growth. This level of health is called, “Living in Our Own Strength.”

You are resting, believing, and trusting in who you are in Christ and living as His Beloved (healthy and aligned with the Gospel). You are no longer using your personality strategies to meet your needs and desires. Instead, you are coming to your Heavenly Father first, who you know loves you and will provide for you. You also trust that he already accomplished what you need and desire. As you keep your focus on him, you are filled and renewed perfectly every time. This level of health is called, “Living as his Beloved.”

Communication Style

|                                 |                              |
|---------------------------------|------------------------------|
| Misaligned Communication | Aligned Communication |
|---------------------------------|------------------------------|

They become more demanding and insistent that the other come through for them in a specific way, leading to more unhealthy pain and misunderstanding. Both Types struggle to speak up for themselves and express their true needs and desires. The Type 2’s demand for attention can disturb the Type 9’s pursuit of inner peace and harmony and cause them to withdraw or become passive-aggressive. This wounds the Type 2 and activates their fear of rejection, causing them to double down on their efforts to serve, even to the point of being possessive, controlling, and manipulative. This only causes the Type 9 to become more angry or resentful, and the unhealthy cycle continues.

They know their spouse still struggles here on earth and can communicate in hurtful ways, but they are able to extend grace, mercy, and forgiveness since their heart is resting in the freeing work of Christ on their behalf. They communicate with empathy, patience, and integrity, knowing that they are each fully loved, secure, and accepted in Christ, despite their fears and insecurities.

Type 2’s Communication Style

Misaligned: Passive-Aggressive, Manipulative, Complaining, Intrusive

Aligned: Helpful, Guiding, Warm, Compassionate, Nonintrusive

Type 9’s Communication Style

Misaligned: Detached, Passive or Passive-Aggressive, Stubborn, Avoidant, Unsure

Aligned: Kind, Good Listener, Receptive, Nonjudgmental, Peaceful, Optimistic, Engaged

Conflict Style

Misaligned

Each partner's personality motivations and beliefs become heightened, and conflict style becomes unhealthy. They each begin to insist that their spouse see the situation the way you do, and conform to what they believe is right or best. The more one partner resists, the more the other will demand, feel hurt and play out the conflict from their personality's fears, weaknesses, and unhealthy hardwiring.

Type 2s in Conflict

Approach to Conflict

- You take a positive approach to conflict, downplaying the problem to maintain peace and reestablish harmony.
- Your desire and priority is to settle the issue quickly and with as little unpleasantness as possible to avoid pain.

Misaligned

- You perceive your partner takes you for granted and under appreciates you.
- You feel upset if you sense you're not needed or wanted, making you feel rejected or dispensable.
- You get frustrated when you perceive your partner is too negative, remaining focused on the problem instead of making peace. This feeling activates your Core Fear of being unvalued, rejected or unworthy of love.

Aligned

- You ask questions and guide your partner toward a solution instead of giving advice.
- You remember that you don't depend on your spouse's approval, appreciation, and encouragement but rest in Christ's love for you.
- You recognize that your partner's priority is to solve the issue efficiently, and aren't necessarily trying to ignore or downplay your feelings or value and extend grace and understanding.

Aligned

They both know that each of their hearts can easily go astray, so they both desperately cling to the finished work of Christ before moving toward each other with needs and wants. Focusing on Christ, who perfectly provides for and fulfills them in a way their partner never can, helps lessen the sparks of conflict.

Type 9s in Conflict

Approach to Conflict

- You take a positive approach to conflict, downplaying the problem to maintain peace and reestablish harmony.
- Your desire and priority is to settle the issue quickly and with as little tension and unpleasantness as possible to avoid pain.

Misaligned

- You say "yes" when you want to say "no," out of fear of prolonging the conflict, creating further disconnection, or losing inner peace. This behavior contributes to your feelings of being overlooked or that your presence and perspective doesn't matter, further straining the relationship.
- You meander in your communication in conflict, since you're unsure or afraid to express how you really think and feel.
- You suppress your true feelings to the point of eruption, and you violently explode in anger toward your spouse when you reach your breaking point.
- You get frustrated when you perceive your partner is too negative, remaining focused on the problem instead of making peace. This feeling activates your Core Fear of tension, discord and losing connection with others.

Aligned

- You realize that conflict can bring about progress and greater intimacy when done well, so you approach it with purpose, courage, and confidence.
- You communicate your perspective and desires in a clear, concise and straightforward manner. You take the time to think, process, and practice your delivery.
- You remember that your presence and perspective are valuable, and that conflict is a two-way street. You actively contribute to the conversation and resist the urge to always merge with your spouse's opinions and preferences.

Childhood Impact On the Relationship

Primary Childhood Message

Our “Childhood Message” is the message we were told directly, or we sensed and interpreted from life circumstances through the lens of our personality Type. This message greatly affected and pained us as children, and now as adults. It’s crucial that we identify how these messages have impacted our hearts, so we can replace them with the healing, freeing truth of Christ.

Misaligned

You believe your childhood messages to be true, causing you to live them out in ways that are not beneficial to you or others.

Aligned

You recognize you have interpreted your growing up years through the lens of your personality type. You take the time to separate and trust what is true of you and your spouse in Christ over what is false.

Type 2’s Childhood Message

Childhood Message: “It is not okay to have your own needs.”

Misaligned: You believe you must only focus on others’ needs to obtain the love, value, and appreciation for which you long. You become increasingly burdened and less present in your marriage relationship.

Aligned: You emulate Christ’s example of balancing self-care with care for others. You realize you only need to look to God for approval, and that He wants you, personally, to be in close relationship with Him. You stop striving to prioritize others’ needs and find rest in the knowledge that you are valued and cherished for simply being you.

Type 9’s Childhood Message

Childhood Message: “Don’t assert yourself.”

Misaligned: You neglect your desires, passions or needs, and go along to get along with your spouse. To disengage with what is disturbing you, you numb out or shut down, accommodating your partner in hopes of keeping the peace. In the process, you lose yourself and feel increasingly overlooked, neglected, and resentful in the relationship.

Aligned: You take the time to think through and identify your thoughts, views, and opinions, and express them to your spouse in a clear and direct way. You realize that your presence and viewpoint are an integral component of a healthy marriage and that merging with your partner causes harm to both you and your relationship.

Suggestions for Growth

Type 2

Pray that you will truly know, believe, and trust that Jesus Christ’s life, death, and resurrection demonstrated how valuable and loved you are, removing the need to seek approval from others. Since you are already loved and valued by Christ, allow yourself to acknowledge and express your own needs to your spouse without guilt.

Type 9

Pray that you will truly know, believe, and trust that Jesus Christ’s life, death, and resurrection perfectly demonstrates that your presence matters, and frees you from the need to hide behind and merge with others to have an identity.

Becoming Us

A thriving marriage requires coming alongside your spouse as they grow into the person God created them to be. When you surrender to the Holy Spirit and depend solely on Him, you'll experience powerful transformation and complete freedom as individuals and as a couple.

Misaligned

You constantly seek to change your spouse, trying to conform them into your own image. You look to your partner to “fill you up,” instead of looking to Christ to meet all your needs.

Aligned

Your heart is at rest and satisfied because it knows that Christ has completely fulfilled its Core Longing. This allows you to trust and have patience in God's perfect timing for your partner's growth. You seek unity by having more understanding and compassion for yourself and your spouse.

How to Support Your Type 9 Spouse

- Encourage your partner when you see them growing, setting goals, taking a stand, confidently asserting themselves and expressing their desires and passions.
- Affirm them when they trust that their presence and voice matter to Christ and live this out in all areas of their life.

How to Support Your Type 2 Spouse

- Encourage your partner when you see them growing, showing kindness and care to themselves, pointing others to Christ instead of needing others to depend solely on them.
- Affirm when you see them finding their value in being Christ's beloved child, instead of on others' appreciation.
